

Séreyrath Srin, native of Cambodia, is the Executive Director of the Corporation intégration Saguenay, whose main mission is the sociocultural integration of newcomers and immigrating persons in Saguenay.

Last fall, he won the award for Personality of Post-Graduate Studies for the provincial contest Forces Avenir du Québec. Through his countless commitments over the past seven years, Mr. Srin has played the role of ambassador, administrator and executive chairman for a myriad of events, organizations, institutions and associations, the most recent one being MAGE-UQAC: mouvement des associations générales étudiantes de l'UQAC. He chose to work on bringing dynamism to the Saguenay-Lac-Saint-Jean region through developing youth potential as well as the sociocultural and socioprofessional integration of newcomers to the region.

According to Mr. Srin: "As ambassador of Saguenay, 2010 Cultural Capital of Canada, I sincerely believe that this historic event is not only a wonderful opportunity to attract tourists on a provincial, national and international scale, but it is also a collective memory that we will all share together while being proud to be a part of it...and especially proud to be from Saguenay!"
